A RESTORATION

Of Lincoln Republicanism and First Principles

IS ADVOCATED BY MR. CHURCH.

A Retrospect—The Writer Holds that the Party Having Performed One Cycle of its Work Must Inaugurate the Succeeding Cycle with a Return to the Original Policy—Must be that or "Cleveland Imperialism."

To the Editor of the Intelligencer.

SIR:—The first utterance of Mr. Lincoln, when he assumed the responsibility which the people placed upon him in 1860, should be the guide in adjusting the Republican party to its new environment. His patriotic words should find place to-day—words which not only consecrated his own noble work, but the work of such men as Seward, Chase, Sumner, Trumbull, Greeley, Wade, Boreman, Fremont and other great men of the party who stood for the cause of righteousness, nearly forty years ago. To look back and survey what they did for the cause of human freedom, and now behold the situation, it is appalling. A great many Lincoln Republicans have no faith in either of the old parties. Here, we think, they are mistaken. The masses of both parties are sound at heart. It is the leaders who now rule that cause all the trouble. What we want is a new leadership—a leadership that will carry out the wishes of the people and restore this overment to its original greatness. The first step is to come back to Lincoln Republicanism.

Let us take a retrospect and see. When the Republican party placed itself under the leadership of Mr. Lincoln its foundation had been laid on the following interpretation of the constitution. These words were inserted in the platform of the convention which nominated Mr. Lincoln in 1860, and were afterwards placed in his inaugural address when he took the oath of office to serve the whole people as President.

"Resolved, That the maintenance inviolate of the rights of the states, and especially the rights of each state, to order and control its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment, exclusively, is essential to the balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric depends; and we denounce the lawless invasion by armed force of the soil of any state or territory, no matter under what pretext, as among the gravest of crimes."

In view of the action of President Cleveland in sending troops to Chicago in the face of the protest of the governor of Illinois, at the time of the Chicago riot, the above utterance should receive from all Republicans and Democrats alike serious consideration. It meets now as it met the crisis in 1860-61, and should be re-affirmed as a warning to corrupt federal judges, an imperious President and the monopolists they serve.

In the present condition of the country it is eminently proper that first principles should be studied and carried out; and hence, we insert the above for Lincoln Republicanism, at least, to ponder and preserve.

The following resolution adopted by the Chicago convention, which nominated Mr. Lincoln in 1860, expresses the now developed sentiment of the people on the tariff question: "That, while providing revenue for the support of the federal government, by duties upon imports, sound policy requires such an adjustment of these imports as to encourage the development of the industrial interests of the whole country; and we recommend that policy of national exchanges which secures to the laboring man liberal wages, to agriculture remunerative prices, to mechanics and manufacturers an adequate reward for their skill, labor and enterprise, and to the nation, commercial prosperity and independence."

Here is where the Republican party started on the tariff. It was re-affirmed by every national convention for twenty years. Out of it has grown, however, the policy of protection for protection's sake—finding its culmination in the McKinley tariff, which, in many of its features, was a tariff protection never contemplated by the fathers of the republic; nor by the original founders of the Republican party. The Democratic party put the cap-stone of "protection" on this pyramid of shameless extortion, and as a consequence the people have condemned both parties for their arrogance in playing into the hands of "communism of profit." Here, in the Lincoln program, we find this compromise re-buile the party and save it from defeat in 1896. The trend of American sentiment is in the direction of modifying our extreme tariff policy. Many go so far as to insist upon English free trade between the English speaking peoples. This, of course, is impracticable. Federation only can solve the free trade problem.

What the United States, the Anglo-Saxon race is working out this and other problems which now claim attention. The mother country gave us Grecian individualism, Roman organization and Hebrew moralism to start with. We have further unified these factors in a federated republic, where these principles are finding expression in liberty and law; in individual freedom and state fraternity. It is an object lesson—the summing up of the past history of the race. Here, the American republic stands unique. In its evolution, it has demonstrated that "federation" is the key-note for the unification of humanity under the guidance and in a sense under the control of the Anglo-Saxon peoples. England has performed the initial work. It is for the United States of America to complete what she has so well begun. She has given to the world the principle of free trade, but for the lack of federation of the English empire, she has failed to carry this principle into her colonies. Not one of them responds to her appeal and example. They ignore the fostering mother and hold to protection. On this continent, free trade is a practical fact between forty-five states, each of which is larger on the average, than the whole British Isles. Whatever may be our ideas and desires free trade must come to humanity through the federation of states. Mr. Blaine saw this; hence his great work in the Pan-American Congress. With a customs union between the American nations, he hoped to secure for the peoples on this continent absolute free trade, as in the United States. But, alas! he was wounded in the house of his friends. The same power which has controlled President Cleveland was operative under President Harrison's administration, and as a result, Mr. Blaine's plans were defeated, and his victory, to cover their own bad faith, claimed all that he had thought out and elaborated. Fortunately the rank and file of the Republican party are beginning to see the greatness of Mr. Blaine's initial work. The leaders will have to fall into line or be crushed.

What the American people want, and stand in need of, is an exclusively national currency in amount amply sufficient for the uses for which money is needed by the people; to consist of gold and silver, coined on equal terms, and government paper; each and all legal tender in payment of all dues of whatever nature, or of any value, receivable for taxes and all public dues."

This money plank expresses the evolved financial policy of the Republican party up to 1873. The Populists have appropriated it, and are now claiming that they are the first to have given form to this financial plank. It was the Republican party that nationalized our currency. The greenback and our national bank notes, added to "gold and silver, coined on equal terms"—the only "sound money," we ever had—was given to the people by the wisdom of the Republican party. In an civil hour silver was demonetized and gold made the exclusive denominator of value, and, as a result, we have the reign of plutocracy. Restore Lincoln Republicanism, and the people will have what they now demand with so much earnestness, and which is expressed in the above quoted words.

The Republican party, with some justice, that it is the great American party. If this is so, then its policies should be distinctly American. Here the work of Mr. Blaine ought to be recognized, for he, more than any other American, saw with clear vision the future destiny of the American people. The Pan-American Congress over which he presided forecasted a policy looking to the commercial federation of the nations on the American continent in a customs union, so as to insure reciprocity of trade, and the closer union of these nations as one people, with one common destiny. To this end, the Republican party should favor the re-calling of the Pan-American Congress to complete the work commenced by Mr. Blaine; notably, the carrying out of the following provision embodied in the law which authorized the organization of the International conference of American nations: "The adoption of a common silver coin to be used by each government, the same to be legal tender in all commercial transactions between the citizens of all the American states."

Since the defeat of Mr. Harrison for President in 1892, many of the leaders of the Republican party have been brought to serious reflection. The question has been whether or not that party, like all previous parties, having performed one cycle of its work, shall relapse and go into decline, or whether it shall pass over into the succeeding cycle equipped for its new duties which the law of evolution makes plain and imperative. Its true leadership now sees the mistakes made in an civil hour which it is now endeavoring to correct. Reverse has brought reason into active play, and the outcome will be, it is hoped, the inauguration of a policy in union with its antecedents, and the fulfillment of the aspirations and wishes of the people. The restoration of Lincoln Republicanism, in many particulars, is the demand of the hour. The "centralization" feature of the Republican party has been a local self-government and the recognition of the rights of the states, as announced in the quotation made above from the platform of the national convention in 1860. This to save the people from Cleveland Imperialism.

The beginning and history of the Republican party presents many interesting features for study. It is the first party ever organized in America which embodied the principles which are represented in the American republic—centralization and states rights. In the interpretations of the constitution, one has been "latitudinarian" and the other "strict construction." Up to 1860 these principles, which form the basis of our national life, were represented by separate political parties. First, the Federal party, the representative of the "strict construction." The leader of this party was Hamilton. Its opponent was the Democratic Republican party, led by Jefferson; the party of strict construction. The latter was succeeded by the Democratic party, led by Jackson. The former by the Whig party, led by Clay. When all the old parties came to an end by the conflict of the late civil war, the law of evolution unified these principles in the Republican party, led by Mr. Lincoln. In the formation of his cabinet he emphasized this new feature by his first caste of persons to compose the administration, as follows:

Lincoln, Judd, Seward, Chase, Bates, Blair, Welles, Dayton.

The four names in the front column, including Mr. Lincoln, were Whigs. The names in the rear column were Democrats, with the exception of Mr. Chase. He had never identified himself with the Democratic party, but accepted the principle of strict construction in the interpretation of the constitution. He was the leader of the anti-slavery movement in Ohio, and as governor of that state was strong in his maintenance of states rights. With their equipment for their great work of freeing four millions of slaves and the birthing of the nation. "This nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, shall not perish from the earth."—Lincoln.

If we have made our thought clear, the reader will see that the Republican party, in this parallel column, form under Mr. Lincoln, embodied the principles of centralization and strict construction, which, before that event, had divided the political sentiment of the country into political parties. We have had enough of centralization; let us now return to states rights and local self-government. That is what the people meant in part when they put the Democratic party in power in 1892. How the leaders of that party have revealed its weakness and betrayed its principles, the people know full well. The Democratic party came to its end in 1892-93, and all efforts to restore its former prestige have failed; simply because its cycle of use closed at that time. Its leading representative principle passed into the Republican party, as announced in the inaugural address of Mr. Lincoln, which we have quoted above. Let the Republican party come back to Lincoln Republicanism, and it will then be prepared to reflect the wishes of the people and meet the dangers which now confront the nation. It then can adjust itself to the new order and enter upon a new work—the freeing of the republic from the encroachments of the enemy, which is now fastening itself upon the life of the people in the form of privilege—trusts, combines, syndicates, and all that makes for inequality. Privilege has had its day, and if we are not mistaken, the grand old party of the past will be equal to the demands of the present and the future. It will now overthrow the communism of profit; it will recoup its exhausted strength and come forth a regenerated party to do the work which it only can do. If it falls, then this republic will encounter the disturbing elements which tend to anarchy or worse—to Cleveland Imperialism; for that is what the "third term" means.

ATKINSON'S POPULARITY.

His Name a Household Word in the Kanawha Valley—An Illustration.

Charles' Daily Telegram: West Virginia has several gentlemen who would fill the gubernatorial chair ably and well, if they were elected. But it is the duty of every Republican in the state to choose that man who not only can fill the chair if he is elected, and who above all others, is the surest of being elected. That one man, we believe, is Old Kanawha's favorite, Hon. George W. Atkinson. If he is our nominee for governor, Kanawha's majority of 2,200 fifteen months ago, will swell into 3,000 this fall. Nominate Atkinson and from every part of the state the people will march in solid column to cast their vote for him for governor. We have several good men we think we might elect, and we know we can elect Atkinson, and why take chances on it? With all deference to all our prominent men, we will say, without fear of contradiction, that there is not one of them who can get anywhere near the vote for governor he can. His name is a household word in this, his native country. We remember at the time when General Grant was making his famous trip around the world, and all the courts of Europe were laying themselves out to honor him, a man who had charge of a country school asked a class of little boys, "who is the greatest living American?" All hands went up immediately. He said to the smallest boy, "Johnnie, you may answer," and he said, "Weth Atkinson." This is not written to make anybody smile, but to show how intensely fond of Wes. Kanawha people are, not only now but for years past, and also how anxious we are to get a chance to vote for him for governor.

THE SULTAN REPLIES

To the Queen—Lays all the Blame on the Armenians.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 7.—The sultan has replied to the autograph letter of Queen Victoria, and which it has been understood was a personal appeal to the better nature of the sultan against the condition of Asia Minor, sympathizing with her in the humane sentiment expressed and declaring that the reports of the massacres were spread by evil disposed persons. The sultan adds that, contrary to the allegations, it was the Turks who were first attacked while praying in the mosque.

Continuing the sultan has assured the queen that the measures taken have succeeded in restoring order; that except at Zeitoun quiet prevails everywhere and that the negotiations going on with the insurgents of Zeitoun will undoubtedly lead to the inhabitants resuming their avocations. In regard to the request of Minister Terzich that the United States legislation be allowed a second dispatch boat for its service, the Turkish government contends that as the passage of the straits of the Dardanelles was regulated by an agreement between the six powers, the United States must apply to them for the necessary permission, as she is not a party to the treaty of Paris.

To be Observed by the Republican Clubs of the Country.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 7.—The Union Republican Club of Washington is arranging for a celebration to be held here the 22nd inst., of the fortieth anniversary of the birth of the national Republican party. Senator H. Carter, chairman of the Republican national committee, says the proposal meets his hearty commendation, and he has written Hon. E. A. McAlpin, president of the national league of Republican clubs, suggesting that the propriety of issuing an address to all Republican club organizations throughout the country to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the party organization on the 22nd instant, in a fitting manner.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 7.—The national association of Window Glass Workers was notified to-day that the manufacturers have decided to postpone the resumption of work in the factories two weeks longer and instead of resuming February 8, the factories will not start up until the 24th instant.

This action was taken by the manufacturers at a meeting last Wednesday when it was shown that the stock of glass on hand in the warehouses was still far in excess of the demand.

DR. JOB SWEET.

One of the most noted physicians and surgeons is Dr. Job Sweet, of New Bedford, Mass. He makes the public statement that he has often recommended the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy to his patients who have been suffering from nervous troubles and he has learned that in a large number of these cases it has proven efficacious.

Dr. Willard H. Morse, F. B. S. Sc., of Westfield, N. J., the great expert on medicines, says of this grand discovery of Dr. Greene:

"The true remedy for nervous diseases is Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It acts by affecting the organs of nutrition, and entering into the formation of new nerve tissue, which generates nerve force. This means the making of new nerves."

The well known Dr. Emil Neumer, superintending physician of the N. Y. Lodge and Association Hospital, says:

"We are using Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy at this hospital for our patients with good success."

Dr. B. D. Bickford, of Volcott, Vt., says:

"I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for some time, first trying it on myself, and I found it did me so much good that I now recommend it to my patients. The fact that I have used it in my own case shows that I know what I am talking about. As a tonic and invigorant it is the best of all to build up a person."

Dr. Robert W. Lance, of South Woodbury, Vt., says:

"I have known about Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and the good results in cases, as a tonic after hard sickness, and the cure of nervous females. They have received great good from its use. I do not hesitate to recommend it."

Dr. C. W. Cook, of Carmel, Ind., says:

"I have used Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy for my patients and have found the remedy all that was claimed for it. The results have been entirely satisfactory. I think it is worthy and I recommend its use."

Such enthusiastic endorsement by physicians stamps this remarkable medical discovery as the greatest restorer of health and strength. It certainly cures more cases of disease than any other known remedy. It makes those who take it strong and well. It is the description and discovery of a well known physician, Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th street, New York city, who can be consulted without charge, personally or by letter.
